5/12/71

Dear Ed,

Your 5/9 could not possibly have been put better. Of the list you append, I have th have the two you designate as best popular account and have never had time to read. There are many also fine earlier versions showing the trend, going back to Anne Rochester and Lindberg's earlier work. I fear I'll not be able to dwell upon this is the desired detail when I get to TIGER for it is already, certainly, too lon long in what I have and is more central to fact rather than doctrine, which will have have to be largely inherest. But I'm filing this excellent statement with the file on that.

The play is an interesting approach. Going to his central therme, have you read Sam Greenlee's The Spook Who Sat By the Door? It is such an approach, of a a black who joins the CIA to learn what he wants to trach then goes forth to teach it to other and younger blacks in Chicago.

Sincerely,
